EMPLOYMENT ONTARIO

Ontario's employment & training network

If you're looking for work, wanting to start a career or looking for a career change, we can help get you started.

If you're an employer who needs skilled workers, we can help you too.

We're Employment Ontario and we want to help you get the training, education, skills and experience to achieve your goals. We want to connect people looking for work with employers looking for workers. That's why we're providing you with more ways to link to our expanding services.

Employment Ontario can help:

- Develop the workplace skills and education you need to achieve your goals
- You find work
- Employers hire people with the skills they need

Employment Ontario will offer streamlined, integrated services that provide straightforward access to programs that can help you.

- Investing in people and skills is a cornerstone of the Ontario government's economic strategy.
- Ontario needs a well-trained, highly skilled workforce. We're achieving this goal through historic investments in our colleges, universities and apprenticeship training system, and through landmark agreements with the federal government.
- Through Employment Ontario, we're bringing together the Ontario government's programs and services to work hand-in-hand with programs, people and resources from the federal government.
